

About Me.

As a Southern California transplant when at the age of 7, I've had the opportunity to grow in this incredible area. From Ruch Elementary school through our close by Southern Oregon University, this small part of the world has offered me everything needed to prepare for adult life. My career in real estate has presented to me the opportunity of meeting a large variety of people from many places of the world. This along with my own opportunities of travel, continues to confirm my opinion that this area is as close to paradise as any place can be.

My father chose to start a career in real estate when he was told to prepare for a transfer from this area by his employer. Having a young family of 3 and during the downturn of the real estate market in the 1980's, his love of the Applegate Valley was worth this life changing gamble. He took the even larger step of taking over Ramsay Realty shortly after when the founder, Edmund Ramsay, chose to retire. Successful in growing this small brokerage over the years, he has now retired and I feel incredibly blessed to have the opportunity to continue on.

I feel finding a real estate agent is as important as finding any professional needed for important life endeavors. Form most, a real estate transaction is life changing on many levels. I am confident that within my crew, you will find the perfect agent in both professionalism and personality.
